What experts say about us

- “Once in soft snow the Small Foot snowshoes feel remarkably good, and I soon forgot I was not wearing the conventional snowshoes I usually use. There is a slightly bouncy feel about them which I liked, also the front does not get stuck in the snow, so that you have to pull your foot back, which is an occasional annoyance with rigid snowshoes.” Simon Beck, England-based artist
- “I see a lot of potential in these survival specific emergency grabbag applications. I think they’re perfect for anyone entering the wilderness in winter. They’re tough, easy to use, float really well and pack away very small. I think these would be great in any survival situation.” John Hudson, Chief Instructor UK SERE
- “The inflatable snowshoes are comfortable and stable when walking on snow, light, ergonomic and take little space. We highly recommend these snowshoes for rescue services and extreme situations in the winter.” Bulgarian Antarctic Institute
- “The innovative snowshoes are multifunctional, light and comfortable for carrying which is very important in extreme situations. Very convenient for work in avalanche fields. Easy to carry for a combination of skiing and emergency snow shoeing. Advantages to conventional models: inflatable, do not take space, light for carrying, stable in deep snow.” Bulgarian Mountain Rescue Team
